

Conflict of Interest Policy

Aims of the service and purpose of policy

The Students' Union (SUSU) Advice Centre aims to support all University of Southampton students on an equal and non-judgemental basis. We provide a free, confidential and impartial advice and information service. The following policy outlines how the service will address the situation when a conflict of interest may arise.

What is a 'Conflict of Interest'?

A conflict of interest occurs where the Advice Centre may be unable to assist a student in an impartial and independent way. A conflict of interest may also arise if the Advice Centre considers that, by assisting a student, we would be perceived as acting against SUSU.

A conflict of interest may arise in following scenarios (not an exhaustive list):

1. When two or more students are in dispute (for example this may be when one student has made a complaint against another in relation to accommodation or a discipline matter, or they are involved in the same Academic Integrity breach);
2. When a student is making a complaint about a member of staff employed by SUSU;
3. When a student makes allegations about the Advice Centre staff;
4. If a student wishes to take a course of action which could be damaging to the services provided by the Advice Centre and/or SUSU.

Procedure in the case of a Conflict of Interest

1. When two or more students are in dispute:

Students should inform the Advice Centre Reception if there are any other students involved in the case prior to an appointment being booked with an Adviser. Students should indicate whether they would prefer to discuss this in confidence rather than on reception.

The Advice Centre Reception will allocate students with different Advisers to ensure impartiality of advice. This will be arranged on a first come first served basis.

If more students approach the Advice Centre than there are available Advisers, any student who is not be able to be seen by an Adviser will be given information by Reception of other sources of support (this may include services outside of the University).

Support Advice Centre

2. If a student approaches the Advice Centre to make a complaint about staff employed by SUSU:

The Advice Centre staff will explain the conflict of interest and that under these circumstances they would not be able to offer impartial advice or provide representation to the student.

The student will be advised to contact the Director of Advice & Representation in first instance to explore the issues informally.

If the student remains dissatisfied, they will be referred to SUSU's Complaints Procedure, available at: <https://www.susu.org/downloads/about/Rule%208%20-%20Complaints%20Procedure.pdf>.

The student may also be signposted to other sources of support (this may include services outside of the University).

3. When a student makes allegations about the Advice Centre staff:

The Advice Centre staff will explain the Conflict of Interest policy and that they would not be able to meet the student's best interests and provide an impartial service. The student will be informed that the member of staff will not be able to continue with the advice or service. The student will be referred to the Advice Centre Complaints policy if they are dissatisfied.

The Advice Centre staff will then inform the Director of Advice & Representation of the case.

4. If a student wishes to take a course of action which could be damaging to the services provided by the Advice Centre and/or the Students Union:

The Advice Centre staff will explain the Conflict of Interest policy and refer the student to other sources of support.

In instances of ongoing cases the Student Adviser will explain the Conflict of Interest to the student, cease advising the student and refer them to external sources of information or support.

The Student Adviser will also report the case to the Director of Advice & Representation.

Disputing a 'Conflict of Interest' decision

A student wanting to dispute a decision made in line with this policy will be referred to the Advice Centre Complaints policy available in the Advice Centre on request.
