2. Name

The association's name is "University Of Southampton Renewability and Sustainability Society", to be known as "RESUS" and hereinafter 'the Group'.

3. Objects

The objectives of the Group, 'the objects', are:

- (2) RESUS group's second critical objective is to give unbiased, empirical, and non-aligned (to any ideology/belief with consideration of any variants of the similar meant) information regarding any of the technologies it is utilizing or the Climate crisis -and the ways it can be normalized- in an accessible way ensuing when this document is first realized, being October 2021.
- (3) RESUS aims to become an integral asset for the academic unit, the STEM faculties, and the university as a whole (regardless of discipline), as this will provide a sustainable extra-curricular activity (and to supply any necessary education related to the activities), which goes hand in hand with and support the formal education that is provided. The activities will also be a significant demonstration of what the University of Southampton students are capable of in terms of actual impactful undertakings when the University sees fit to use it during a promotional event.
- (4) RESUS aims to represent itself, the individuals within and the University of Southampton through competitions, promotion, international collaboration, and the similar withholding the absolute principle of documenting and acknowledging each individual's work, contribution, affiliation transparently and to the highest reasonable extent with the channels available to it. This is not to only be fair to each individual as ethically it is possible but to elevate the position of the University of Southampton (and RESUS within) in the current zeitgeist of academia, science, engineering, business, and collaboration.
- (5) Finally, RESUS aims to collaborate within the university especially with other manufacturing societies and any relevant academic teams/mentors to promote interdisciplinary action regarding sustainability and renewability, Also to further the creation of the channels between such groups for the aim of easing collaboration, communication (or the ontologically similar) to take place.
